Eric is a staunch advocate and aggressive defender of his clients and their interests.

A trusted legal advisor to individuals and businesses, he guides them through complex legal issues and strategic decisions. Eric firmly believes that most disputes are best resolved outside the courtroom through skilled and pragmatic negotiation. However, when litigation or arbitration is appropriate, he is a relentless and strategic adversary.

Having served eight years in the United States Marine Corps, first as an enlisted Marine and later as an officer, Eric is more than comfortable in an adversarial environment. Clients trust Eric to advance their interests in federal and state courts, in both trials and appeals. They also turn to him for representation in disputes before domestic and international arbitration tribunals.

For his business clients, Eric works to understand their goals and find ways for them to get there. He helps clients make deals, negotiate contracts, plan for growth and protect from risk. Clients don't want legal problems; Eric helps them avoid them.

Eric has assisted clients in a broad range of issues:

- Complex commercial disputes
- Contract negotiation, drafting and disputes
- International/cross-border commercial disputes
- Will and trust contests
- Fiduciary litigation, including defending and pursuing claims for breach of fiduciary duty by trustees or personal representatives
- Actions for accountings
- Large scale construction disputes
- Bid contests
- Banking and securities litigation
- Internal investigations
