Flynn is Director of Intellectual Property Services at Fox Rothschild, where he oversees the administrative functions of the firm's IP Group, including compliance with U.S. Patent and Trademark Office procedures and the efficient execution of high-quality patent and trademark prosecution for clients. A registered patent agent, he is qualified to handle domestic and foreign patent prosecution relating to chemical and pharmacological sciences as well as various other technological fields.

Before Fox Rothschild

Prior to joining the firm, Flynn served as patent services manager for an intellectual property boutique law firm in New York, where he managed a team of paralegals and assistants responsible for clients' domestic and foreign patent prosecution. He was also formerly a patent agent and a paralegal at other New York-based firms.
